But all things that are reprov'd are made manifest by the light: for whatsoever doth make manifest is light. Wherefore he saith, Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light. See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, Redeeming the time, because the days are evil."

The 1828 Noah Webster Dictionary defines:

Reprove: To blame, to convince of a fault, or to make it manifest, to excite a sense of guilt.

Circumspectly: Cautiously; with watchfulness every way; with attention to guard against surprise or danger.

II Chronicles 7:14: "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."

Psa 103:2 Bless the LORD, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits...

Psa 16:5 The LORD [is] the portion of mine inheritance and of my cup: thou maintainest my lot.

Psa 16:6 The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant [places]; yea, I have a goodly heritage. (Comment: The words Lot and Lines in the context of these verses means: ones portion or recompense)

Psa 16:7 I will bless the LORD, who hath given me counsel: my reins also instruct me in the night seasons.

Psa 16:8 I have set the LORD always before me: because [he is] at my right hand, I shall not be moved.

Psa 16:9 Therefore my heart is glad, and my glory rejoiceth: my flesh also shall rest in hope.

Psa 16:10 For thou wilt not leave my soul in hell; neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption.

Psa 16:11 Thou wilt shew me the path of life: in thy presence [is] fulness of joy; at thy right hand [there are] pleasures for evermore.

'Indefinite Detention' Bill Passes Senate 93-7

Infowars.com--Friday, December 2, 2011

Ambiguous but alarming new wording, which is tucked into the National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) and was just passed by the Senate, is reminiscent of the "extraordinary measures" introduced by the Nazis after they took power in 1933.

And the relative lack of reaction so far calls to mind the oddly calm indifference with which most Germans watched the erosion of the rights that had been guaranteed by their own Constitution. As one German writer observed, "With sheepish submissiveness we watched it unfold, as if from a box at the theater."

The writer was Sebastian Haffner, a young German lawyer worried at what he saw in 1933 in Berlin, but helpless to stop it since, as he put it the German people "collectively and limply collapsed, yielded and capitulated."

"The result of this millionfold nervous breakdown," wrote Haffner at the time, "is the unified nation, ready for anything, that is today the nightmare of the rest of the world." The Senate bill, in effect, revokes an 1878 law known as the Posse Comitatus Act, which banned the Army from domestic law enforcement after the military had been used —and often abused — in that role during Reconstruction. Until now that law has been taken very seriously. Military officers have had their careers brought to an abrupt halt by involving federal military assets in purely civilian criminal matters.

The Senate also codified into law the power of the U.S. military to indefinitely detain an American citizen with no charge, no trial and no oversight whatsoever with the passage of S. 1867, the National Defense Authorization Act.

One amendment that would have specifically blocked the measures from being used against U.S. citizens was voted down and the final bill was passed 93-7.

This horrendous bill technically turns all of America into a battlefield and subjects American citizens to indefinite military detention without charge or trial.

To make matters even worse, only seven of our so-called representatives voted against the bill, proving once and for all (if anyone had any remaining doubts) that our government is totally corrupted.

<http://theintelhub.com/2011/12/02/the-entire-united-states-is-now-a-war-zone-s-1867-passes-the-senate-with-massive-support/>

Another amendment introduced by Senate Intelligence Committee Chairman Dianne Feinstein that attempted to bar the provision from being used on American soil, an effort to ensure “the military won’t be roaming our streets looking for suspected terrorists,” also failed, although Feinstein voted in favor of the bill anyway.

Feinstein was able to include a largely symbolic amendment which states that “nothing in the bill changes current law relating to the detention of U.S. citizens and legal aliens,” but this measure is meaningless according to Republican Congressman Justin Amash, a fierce critic of the bill.

“Some have asserted that Sen. Feinstein’s amendment, S Amdt 1456, protects the rights of American citizens and preserves constitutional due process. Unfortunately, it does not. It’s just more cleverly worded nonsense,” Amash wrote on his Facebook page.

Though the White House has threatened to veto the bill, the fact that Obama administration lawyers yesterday reaffirmed their backing for state sponsored assassination of U.S. citizens would suggest otherwise. Not voting for the bill, or in other words upholding the oath to protect the Constitution, has been described over and over again as “political suicide”.

“The bill puts military detention authority on steroids and makes it permanent, American citizens and others are at greater risk of being locked away by the military without charge or trial,” said Christopher Anders, senior legislative counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union.

As Spencer Ackerman highlights, the bill completely violates the sixth amendment in that it allows American citizens to be locked up indefinitely, including in a foreign detention center, without any burden of proof whatsoever. An American merely has to be declared a terrorist and they can be abducted off the streets and never seen again. “The detention mandate to use indefinite military detention in terrorism cases isn’t limited to foreigners.”

Senate approves military sodomy, bestiality, 93-7

by Joel McDurmon on Dec 3, 2011

Yes, it’s true: the “indefinite detention” bill passed this week also repealed the Army’s prohibitions of sodomy and . . . bestiality. And believe it or not, the Senate voted in favor an overwhelming 93 to 7.

Subtitle E, Section 551(d) states plainly: “Repeal of Sodomy Article-Section 925 of such title (article 125 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice) is repealed.” (See p. 174, lines 4-6.)

And what exactly is repealed here? The repealed Section 925. Article 125 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice clearly states,

(a) Any person subject to this chapter who engages in unnatural carnal copulation with another person of the same or opposite sex or with an animal is guilty of sodomy...

(b) Any person found guilty of sodomy shall be punished as a court-martial may direct.

These laws are gone, which effectually means a legalization of not just gays in the military, but the gay sex act in the military.

“It’s all about using the military to advance this administration’s radical social agenda,” Perkins told CNSNews.com. “Not only did they overturn Don’t Ask Don’t Tell, but they had another problem, and that is, under military law sodomy is illegal, just as adultery is illegal, so they had to remove that prohibition against sodomy.”

So, following on the heels of the Administration’s repeal of “Don’t ask, don’t tell” is a repeal of the laws against sodomy. We now have a military that has come completely out of the closet. And worse, the repeal simultaneously legalizes sex with animals as well.

Check here to see if your Senators voted “yes” for gay sex in the military (most of them did).

Man-Made Super-Flu Could Kill Half Humanity

Russia Today

November 24, 2011

A virus with the potential to kill up to half the world’s population has been made in a lab. Now academics and bioterrorism experts are arguing over whether to publish the recipe, and whether the research should have been done in the first place.

The virus is an H5N1 bird flu strain which was genetically altered to become much more contagious. It was created by Ron Fouchier of the Erasmus Medical Centre in Rotterdam, the Netherlands, who first presented his work to the public at an influenza conference in Malta in September.

Fouchier said the strain circulates in animals, particularly birds, but rarely affects humans.

In the ten or so years since bird flu first emerged in Asia, fewer than 600 cases have been reported in humans. But the H5N1 strain is particularly vicious, killing roughly half of patients diagnosed with it.

What stops it from becoming a major threat to public health is that it does not readily transmit from human to human. Or at least it didn’t – until now.

Researchers in Fouchier's team used ferrets – test animals which closely mimic the human response to influenza – and transmitted H5N1 from one to another to make it more adaptable to new hosts. After 10 generations, the virus had mutated to become airborne, which means ferrets became ill from merely being near other diseased animals

A genetic study showed that the new, dangerous strain had only five mutations compared to the original one, and all of them were earlier seen in the natural environment – just not all at once.

Fouchier's strain is as contagious as the human seasonal flu, but is likely to cause many more fatalities if released.

"I can't think of another pathogenic organism that is as scary as this one," Paul Keim, a microbial geneticist who has worked on anthrax for many years, told Science Insider. "I don't think anthrax is scary at all compared to this."

Now Keim, who chairs the US National Science Advisory Board for Biosecurity (NSABB), and other members of the body, have a very difficult decision to make.

Fouchier wants his study to be published.

So does virologist Yoshihiro Kawaoka, who led similar research in collaboration with the University of Wisconsin, Madison, and the University of Tokyo, and reached comparable results. And it is up to NSABB to give them the green light.

Many academics and biosecurity experts are naturally cautious about releasing information which could provide any bioterrorist with a ready recipe to hold the world to ransom. Some argue that such work should never have been done in the first place and call for international monitoring of potentially harmful research.

"It's just a bad idea for scientists to turn a lethal virus into a lethal and highly contagious virus. And it's a second bad idea for them to publish how they did it so others can copy it," believes Dr. Thomas Inglesby, a bioterrorism expert and director of the Center for Biosecurity of the University of Pittsburgh Medical Center.

US Researchers And Pharmaceutical Companies Conducting Human Experimentation in Africa

By Farid Zakaria--November 7, 2011 "PBFC" -- A new policy brief faults prominent institutions and drug companies like Pfizer, Columbia University, Johns Hopkins University, and Population Council, for their involvement in unethical and illegal human experimentation in Africa.

The report is titled "Non-Consensual Research in Africa: The Outsourcing of Tuskegee" in reference to the illegal human experiment conducted in Tuskegee, Alabama, between 1932 and 1972 by the US Public Health Service. In that experiment, some 600 impoverished African-American men were observed in a study on the progression of untreated syphilis. Some of the men were intentionally infected with the disease and all of them were denied the cure. Regrettably, the report notes, no one was held accountable for this crime against humanity.

The new report details human experiments led by US researchers and drug companies on Africans who are typically undereducated, poor, and lack full understanding of their rights. The human subjects often are led to believe that they are receiving medical treatment from governmental health services or health ministries.

These practices hearken back to the appalling experiments carried out by US researchers in Guatemala in the 1940s where hundreds of Guatemalans were deliberately infected with sexually transmitted diseases without information or consent. President Obama formally apologized to Guatemala for these experiments last year. Human experimentation in the United States is regulated by the Office of Research Integrity and various Ethical Research Institutional Boards. Many African countries lack these institutions. Even when they exist, they lack independence and are controlled by corrupt government officials.

In one experiment on HIV sponsored by Gilead Sciences, the Centers for Disease Control, and the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation and operated by Family Health International, Cameroonian subjects were given details about the experiment in English even though many spoke only French and were illiterate. Five women were allegedly infected with HIV in the experiment but were not given antiretroviral drugs.

In another experiment in Nigeria led by Pfizer physicians, researchers injected children with an antibiotic called Trovan during a meningitis outbreak without providing their families with informed consent forms that fully disclose the side effects and purpose of the experiment. Eleven children died and many were left paralyzed.

In South Africa and Namibia, mothers with HIV/AIDS are routinely sterilized without their informed consent. Countries that perform these procedures are known to receive funding in the form of grants and incentives from USAID and other aid organizations.

The report explains that US researchers and drug companies violate the laws and protocols of the Declaration at Helsinki (1964) and the Belmont Report which provide ethical guidelines on human experimentation.

Moreover, the results of unethical and fraudulent experiments are laundered in the United States and Europe through the peer-review system. Many of the "peers" who review these experiments are themselves involved in the same unethical conduct.

Others are concerned about the possibility of professional alienation if they speak out.

The authors have made several demands so that these practices are ended. They include holding congressional hearings so that the matter is brought to the public's attention and enacting new legislation to ensure that drugs are not approved by the FDA unless the research on which they are based comply with ethical research principles.

When bill and melinda gates get on the TV and "inform" the public that they are giving "free" vaccinations to the little children in black communities to keep them "healthy" I correct the puppet who reads from the script with, "you mean experiment on them with lethal drugs to kill or maim them".....this "loving couple" who "care" so much about these people are nothing more than slow death torturers of mothers, fathers and children who they perceive as unfit to be walking on this planet.....They both need to be locked up in solitary confinement where they will be forced to try out all the vaccines they have pumped into those little arms, we'll do that one after the other until you are both pronounced dead.

North Carolina's Eugenics Victims Speak Out

November 8th, 2011 Via: MSNBC:

Elaine Riddick was 13 years old when she got pregnant after being raped by a neighbor in Winfall, N.C., in 1967. The state ordered that immediately after giving birth, she should be sterilized. Doctors cut and tied off her fallopian tubes.

"I have to carry these scars with me. I have to live with this for the rest of my life," she said.

Riddick was never told what was happening. “Got to the hospital and they put me in a room and that’s all I remember, that’s all I remember,” she said. “When I woke up, I woke up with bandages on my stomach.”

Riddick’s records reveal that a five-person state eugenics board in Raleigh had approved a recommendation that she be sterilized. The records label Riddick as “feeble-minded” and “promiscuous.” They said her schoolwork was poor and that she “does not get along well with others.”

“I was raped by a perpetrator [who was never charged] and then I was raped by the state of North Carolina. They took something from me both times,” she said. “The state of North Carolina, they took something so dearly from me, something that was God given.”

It wouldn’t be until Riddick was 19, married and wanting more children, that she’d learn she was incapable of having any more babies. A doctor in New York where she was living at the time told her that she’d been sterilized.

“Butchered. The doctor used that word... I didn’t understand what she meant when she said I had been butchered,” Riddick said.

North Carolina was one of 31 states to have a government run eugenics program. By the 1960s, tens of thousands of Americans were sterilized as a result of these programs.

Steve Jobs and Apple Exposed

Mark Cahills Newsletter--November 2011

Seeing the world’s reaction to the passing of Apple co-founder and CEO Steve Jobs has been interesting. It seemed like he was on the frontpage of every website when he died; and of course, he had been on the cover of Time magazine something like seven times during his life. He definitely was a popular man who made some big impacts on the world of technology during his years on planet earth.

To read some of the glowing reviews of this man, you would have thought he could do no wrong. So, I decided to do some research to see if I could find out more about him. Here are some interesting things that I learned:

- He sold one of his companies for $400 million and another (Pixar) for $8 billion!! But the Bible has many interesting things to say about wealth of the wicked.

Matthew 16:26

“For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?”

- iTunes has sold over 16 billion songs.

How many of those songs that have been downloaded do you think glorify the God that Steve Jobs had to give an account to upon his death?

Revelation 20:12

“And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; and the books were opened: and another book was opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works.”

- “I have been shameless about stealing great ideas.” —Steve Jobs (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=CW0DUq63lqU>)

Exodus 20:15

"Thou shalt not steal."

- "Traversing India sparked Jobs' conversion to Buddhism. Kobun Chino, a monk, presided over his wedding to Laurene Powell, a Stanford University MBA.
- Jobs had a daughter, Lisa, out of wedlock with Chrisann Brennan. He denied paternity for many years, swearing in a court document that he was sterile. Later, he had three more kids with Laurene Powell.
- Perhaps the most important of Steve Jobs values is, simply, to make an outsize impact on society. Or, as Jobs put it, 'We're here to put a dent in the universe.'"

<http://www.cnn.com/2011/10/05/tech/innovation/steve-jobs-philosophy/index.html>

Steve Jobs credited using the drug LSD as a big part of his success. In an interview with The New York Times reporter John Markoff, Jobs once said, "Doing LSD was one of the two or three most important things I have done in my life." He added that Bill Gates would "be a broader guy if he had dropped acid once."

Apple Computer & 666

Subject: apple computers

Hey Dr Johnson, ...i noticed that the website www.churchofsatan.com was made by a Mac computer, Anton Lavey (The Founder of the Church of Satan in 1966) proudly used Macs, and says this on his website:

"It is also amusing to us that this company uses as a corporate logo, an apple with a bite taken from it, which certainly appears to be a reference to that other famous apple. We have not forgotten that forbidden fruit, which would impart knowledge of Good and Evil, offered to Eve in that mythical garden by none other than the serpent, an avatar of Satan himself. Is it not then strange that they seem to fear the admiration of the Church of Satan? As Anton LaVey himself would have said, "They want to dance, but their feet won't let them."" the entire letter can be found here: <http://www.churchofsatan.com/Pages/Apple.html>

...GOD BLESS YOU!

My Response: Yes the history of this company is undeniably evil. See below.

Dear readers, have you ever wondered why the modern term for a bit of information is called a Byte? The first fruit from the information superhighway (The modern day Tree of knowledge) was the first personal computer - The APPLE computer. Notice first that their company logo is an apple with a bite (or byte) taken out of it. When we surf the Internet we are downloading bytes or bits of binary information. Every day terabytes of information are downloaded worldwide.

<http://cybernetnews.com/2007/08/17/cyberdays-apple-1-computer-cost-66666/>

The image below is a clipping from a newspaper in 1976 when the original Apple-1 computer was being advertised. A few things really stood out, but one of them was the Apple logo (bottom of left column). The next thing that stood out was the price – $666.66?

A BALANCE OF FEATURES

The APPLE-1 SYSTEM is a fully assembled, tested & burned-in microprocessor board using the 6502 microprocessor. The board contains processor & support hardware; complete video electronics for a 40 character/line, 24 line video display; on-board RAM capacity of 8K BYTES; software system monitor in PROM; and fully regulated power supplies. The Apple attaches directly to an ASCII encoded keyboard and a video monitor, allowing the efficient entry and examination of programs in hexadecimal notation. The use of the new 16-pin 4K RAM chips results in low power and high density memory, which can be upgraded to the 16K chips when they become available (32K bytes on-board RAM!!)

A fast (1 kilobaud) cassette interface is available and includes a tape of Apple Basic. And ... Yes, Folks, Apple Basic is Free!

<http://www.guardian.co.uk/technology/2011/oct/06/steve-jobs-quotes>

For the Christians reading this newsletter, do any of the above comments bother you? Why have I met so many Christians who seem to idolize Apple products? Why have Christians put 'RIP Steve Jobs' on Facebook, when nobody can rest in peace without the Prince of Peace?

I took one of my students from back in the day to a meeting in Atlanta. They had a guest speaker that night who spoke and the whole beginning of his talk was about the Apple products that he owned. It went on and on about his love for those products. He then brought a trashcan on stage. I knew without a shadow of a doubt that he was going to throw those gadgets in that trashcan and make a point about his idol worship. Nope. Didn't happen. At the end of the night, as we were walking back to the car, my young friend said, “That man has an unhealthy addiction to his gadgets.” It was the most obvious thing in his presentation.

My goal is to try and make sure I never give Apple one nickel of my money my whole life. I don't own any of Apple's products and plan on keeping it that way.

“Mr. Jobs spent his final weeks—as he had spent most of his life—in tight control of his choices.” “But for Steve, it was all about living life on his own terms and not wasting a moment with things he didn't think were important. He was aware that his time on earth was limited. He wanted control of what he did with the choices that were left.”

<http://www.nytimes.com/2011/10/07/technology/with-time-running-short-steve-jobs-managed-his-farewells.html?pagewanted=all>

Mr. Jobs had the foresight to prepare four years worth of new products that will come down the Apple pipeline. The only problem is that while it seems like he prepared for everything, he didn't prepare for his death. He is quoted as saying, "No one wants to die. Even people who want to go to heaven don't want to die to get there. And yet death is the destination we all share. No one has ever escaped it. And that is as it should be, because death is very likely the single best invention of life. It is life's change agent. It clears out the old to make way for the new. Your time is limited, so don't waste it living someone else's life."

<http://www.guardian.co.uk/technology/2011/oct/06/steve-jobs-the-best-tributes>

I am afraid Mr. Jobs was wrong again. There are plenty of people who want to die. Paul said in Philippians 1:21

"For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain."

I can't wait to die! Dreams come true on that day!! Do you feel that way? While it's natural to want to live your life here on earth, aren't you at least a little excited about the last breath that you'll take? If you are not, examine yourself to make sure you are of the faith. Born again people have nothing to fear in death—they have the joy of finally getting to see Jesus awaiting them!

Sadly, Mr. Jobs was just another wasted life. His life and his death had no eternal value. God graciously allows certain people to have a slow death, so that they can repent of their sins and get right with Him before they die. The good news is that I do know of a man who witnessed to Steve Jobs! He was an Apple employee who took the necessary time to share with him about Jesus Christ. But because of Steve's rejection of Jesus Christ, there is a big problem:

John 3:36: "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life: and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him."

Salvation was offered to Mr. Jobs, and he had the total ability to accept it or the total ability to reject it. His rejection of what Jesus Christ did for him when He died on the cross at Calvary had consequences for him on planet earth, and now will have eternal consequences as well. He is currently burning in hell until the time he goes before God at the Great White Throne Judgment to then be cast into the Lake of Fire for Eternity.

Apple's logo is an apple with a bite out of it. Ironically, the thing that Eve did is the same thing Mr. Jobs did. They both rebelled against God. And there will always be consequences for that.

So remember to be thankful for:

1. Your Salvation
2. That you have breath to speak the words of eternal life to people
3. That your goal is to fight the good fight, to finish the race, and to keep the faith

Until the nets are full,

Dr. Johnson's Teaching: George Noory Interviews B. Creme Re: Maitreya's Emergence & the Star Sign

Product Description

Throughout history, people have sought ways to contact the dead and spirits. Such experiences challenge beliefs and often set people on a path of deeper exploration, looking for validation—and ways to have controlled, direct contact. Do spirit communication devices really work? What are the prospects of someday being able to pick up a cell phone or sit in front of a webcam and talk to the Other Side? While proof of contact is still elusive, there is an abundance of tantalizing evidence and experience to inspire people.

For the past century, inventors have been inspired by the spirits themselves to create telephone, video, radio, and computers to attempt real-time, two-way communication with the dead and other entities.

Talking to the Dead explores the colorful history and personalities behind spirit communications, weaving together spirituality, metaphysics, science, and technology. It examines the idea that new technology can connect to the ancient and universal wisdom of the "music of the spheres"; that contact with the spirit realms can be made through the vibrations of sound.

Satanic Parlor Tricks: Do loved ones bid farewell from beyond the grave?

By John Blake, CNN--Fri September 23, 2011

(CNN) -- Nina De Santo was about to close her New Jersey hair salon one winter's night when she saw him standing outside the shop's glass front door.

It was Michael. He was a soft-spoken customer who'd been going through a brutal patch in his life. His wife had divorced him after having an affair with his stepbrother, and he had lost custody of his boy and girl in the ensuing battle.

He was emotionally shattered, but De Santo had tried to help. She'd listened to his problems, given him pep talks, taken him out for drinks.

When De Santo opened the door that Saturday night, Michael was smiling.

"Nina, I can't stay long," he said, pausing in the doorway. "I just wanted to stop by and say thank you for everything."

They chatted a bit more before Michael left and De Santo went home. On Sunday she received a strange call from a salon employee. Michael's body had been found the previous morning -- at least nine hours before she talked to him at her shop. He had committed suicide.

If Michael was dead, who, or what, did she talk to that night?

"It was very bizarre," she said of the 2001 encounter. "I went through a period of disbelief. How can you tell someone that you saw this man, solid as ever, walk in and talk to you, but he's dead?"

Today, De Santo has a name for what happened that night: "crisis apparition." She stumbled onto the term while reading about paranormal activities after the incident. According to paranormal investigators, a crisis apparition is the spirit of a recently deceased person who visits someone they had a close emotional connection with, usually to say goodbye.

Reports of these eerie encounters are materializing in online discussion groups, books such as "Messages" -- which features stories of people making contact with loved ones lost on September 11 -- and local ghost hunting groups that have sprung up across the country amid a surge of interest in the paranormal.

Although such encounters are chilling, they can also be comforting, witnesses and paranormal investigators say..

Some suggest crisis apparitions are guardian angels sent to comfort the grieving.

Whatever the source for these apparitions, they often leave people shaken.

Nor are apparitions limited to visions. The spirit of a dead person can communicate with a loved one through something as subtle as the sudden whiff of a favorite perfume, Volk says.

"Sometimes you just sense the presence of someone close to you, and it seemingly comes out of nowhere," Volk said. "And afterward, you find out that person was in some kind of crisis at the time of the vision."

Simma Lieberman said she's experienced that ominous feeling and has never forgotten it -- though it took place more than 40 years ago.

Today, Lieberman is a workplace diversity consultant based in Albany, California. In the late 1960s though, she was a young woman in love.

Her boyfriend, Johnny, was a mellow hippie "who loved everybody," a guy so nice that friends called him a pushover, she said. She loved Johnny, and they purchased an apartment together and decided to marry.

Then one night, while Lieberman was at her mother's home in the Bronx, the phone rang and she answered. Johnny was on the line, sounding rushed and far away. Static crackled.

"I just want you to know that I love you, and I'll never be mean to anybody again," he said.

There was more static, and then the line went dead. Lieberman was left with just a dial tone.

She tried to call him back to no avail. When she awoke the next morning, an unsettled feeling came over her. She said it's hard to put into words, but she could no longer feel Johnny's presence.

Then she found out why.

"Several hours later, I got a call from his mother that he had been murdered the night before," she said.

Johnny was shot in the head as he sat in a car that night. Lieberman thinks Johnny somehow contacted her after his death -- a crisis apparition reaching out not through a vision or a whiff of perfume, but across telephone lines.

She's sorted through the alternatives over the years. Could he have called before or during his murder? Lieberman doesn't think so.

This was the era before cell phones. She said the murderer wasn't likely to let him use a pay phone, and he couldn't have called after he was shot because he died instantly.

Only years later, when she read an article about other static-filled calls people claimed to have received from beyond the grave, did it make sense, she said. Johnny was calling to say goodbye.

Josh Harris' experience baffled him as well. It involved his grandfather, Raymond Harris. Josh was Raymond's first grandchild. They spent countless hours together fishing and doing yardwork in their hometown of Hackleburg, Alabama. You saw one, you saw the other.

Those days came to an end in 1997 when Raymond Harris was diagnosed with lung cancer. The doctors gave him weeks to live. Josh, 12 at the time, visited his grandfather's house one night to keep vigil as his "pa-pa" weakened, but his family ordered him to return home, about two miles away.

Josh said he was asleep on the couch in his home around 2 a.m. when he snapped awake. He looked up. His grandfather was standing over him.

"At first, it kind of took me by surprise," said Harris, a maintenance worker with a gravelly Southern accent. "I wondered why he was standing in the hallway and not in his house with everyone else."

His grandfather then spoke, Harris said.

"He just looked at me, smiled and said, 'Everything will be OK.' "

His grandfather then turned around and started walking toward the kitchen. Harris rose to follow but spun around when the phone rang. An aunt who was in another room answered.

"When I turned back around to look, he was gone," Harris said.

As if on cue, his aunt came out of the room crying, "Josh, your pa-pa is gone."

"No, he was just here," Harris told his aunt, insisting that his grandfather had just stopped by to say everything was OK. He said it took him a day to accept that his grandfather had died.

"Honestly, before that, I never believed in the paranormal," he said. "I thought it was all fake and made up. But I just woke up and I saw him. It couldn't be my mind playing a trick. He looked solid."

Fourteen years after his grandfather's death, there's another detail from that night that's still lodged in Harris' memory.

As he watched his grandfather walk to the kitchen, he said he noticed something unusual.

"It looked like there was a whitish glow around him."....

The Deceptive Allure of Witchcraft , New Age and Near Death Experiences

September 2nd, 2007 by Dr. Scott Johnson

In this teaching we will be discussing the allure of many New Age practices. We will start by looking at a witchcraft/spiritualist camp in Wisconsin that boasts a bevy of witches and mediums that one can pay to communicate with supposed dead loved ones, look into your future, explore supposed past lives, see visions, receive prophecies, heal the sick, levitate etc. In the Old Testament witchcraft was punishable by death but in modern day America it is increasingly embraced. But the Bible says "Woe unto them that call evil good and good evil." According to the book of Daniel witchcraft will be the essence of the one world religion and as a result it is very important that we as Christians understand the deception that is coming. In the second part we will be focusing on a famous medical doctor that has supposedly proven (from his research into near death experiences) that there is NO judgment after death (regardless of your beliefs) only acceptance and love. This is the kind of damnable heresy that Satan so loves to propagate and undoubtedly will take millions to hell. Arm your self with knowledge Christian.
