Ephesians 5:11, 13-16: "And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them. But all things that are reprov'd are made manifest by the light: for whatsoever doth make manifest is light. Wherefore he saith, Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light. See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, Redeeming the time, because the days are evil."

The 1828 Noah Webster Dictionary defines:

Reprove: To blame, to convince of a fault, or to make it manifest, to excite a sense of guilt.

Circumspectly: Cautiously; with watchfulness every way; with attention to guard against surprise or danger.

Matthew 24:24: "...if it were possible, they shall deceive the very elect."

II Corinthians 2:11: "Lest Satan should get an advantage of us: for we are not ignorant of his devices."

II Chronicles 7:14: "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."

Gun Confiscation Getting Very Close in Illinois: It is no longer a conspiracy theory spawned by deplorable bitter clingers, but a creeping reality Americans could be facing soon

By Daniel John Sobieski

It is no longer a conspiracy theory spawned by deplorable bitter clingers, but a creeping reality spawned by shootings law enforcement could have prevented but didn't. The Illinois House has passed legislation requiring 18- to 20-year-olds to give up certain legally purchased and legally owned firearms:

A bill requiring 18-20 year olds to hand over or transfer ownership of heretofore legally possessed "assault weapons" is gaining sponsors in the Illinois Senate after passing the House last month.

The bill, HB 1465, was sponsored in the House by Rep. Michelle Mussman (D-Schaumburg) and passed by a vote of 64-51 on February 28.

After being introduced in the upper house by Senate President John Cullerton (D-Chicago), the bill has added seven co-sponsors in the last week. Notable among them was Sen. Jim Oberweis (R-Sugar Grove), the NRA "A" rated 2014 Republican nominee for U.S. Senate.

The NRA-ILA described the weapons covered by HB 1465 as "commonly-owned semi-automatic firearms." The bill also requires 18-20-year-olds to forfeit ownership of any magazines that hold more than ten rounds of ammunition.

Gun confiscation is here. First they will come for the young, who can go to war with guns but can no longer go hunting with them or protect their families. If you are a 20-year-old single mom with a restraining order against a violent ex-boyfriend, well, you'll just have to trust your life to 911 as your door is being kicked in. Meanwhile, the government wants you to give it your guns:

Fox 2 reports that critics of Mussman's bill were taken aback by "the idea that the government would confiscate property." Mussman responded to these concerns by assuring them "authorities will not visit homes to pick up weapons." Rather, "a first offense for getting caught with prohibited firearms would be a misdemeanor offense."

That is what you call a distinction without a difference. If there is another shooting law enforcement fails to prevent, rest assured that the misdemeanor will become a felony, the voluntary turn-in will indeed become a door-knock, and the requirement to give up your weapons and your Second Amendment rights will expand to other groups such as veterans and seniors deemed unfit because of stress and age to own firearms. President Trump recently rolled back an Obama-era executive order attempting to accomplish that last one.

Restricting the right to purchase and own a firearm may sound good to the gun grabbers, but age and maturity don't always coincide, and the fact is that most mass shooters have been over 21 (and that is if we believe the official narratives of the lying main stream media)

Related: Las Vegas resident: 'I saw three black helicopters flying forcefully into the city above the rooftops as if they were running a mission' on the night of the Oct. 1st massacre -THATS WHY NO AUTOPSIES OR BALLISTICS WERE RELEASED OF THIS GOVERNMENT FALSE FLAG SLAUGHTER! . Again, if you can carry a gun to defend your country, you should be able to own one to defend yourself and your family. This legislation is naïve, dangerous, and arguably an unconstitutional ex post facto law.

"Passing a law that makes it illegal for a 20-year-old to purchase a shotgun for hunting or adult single mother from purchasing the most effective self-defense rifle on the market punishes law-abiding citizens for the evil acts of criminals," an NRA spokesman told the Hill.

It is typical of gun-control zealots that their answer to the slaughter invited by gun-free zones is to create more gun-free victims. Those who fear an armed citizenry are typically those who believe that all rights are on loan from an all-powerful government. The Founders wisely wrote the Second Amendment to protect the other nine in the Bill of Rights.

Critics of the Second Amendment say they are not going after guns used for legitimate activities such as hunting. But when the Founders wrote the Second Amendment, it was because the British were coming, not because it was the start of deer season. As Fox News contributor Judge Andrew Napolitano notes:

The historical reality of the Second Amendment's protection of the right to keep and bear arms is not that it protects the right to shoot deer[.] ... It protects the right to shoot tyrants, and it protects the right to shoot at them effectively, with the same instruments they would use upon us. If the Jews in the Warsaw ghetto had had the firepower and ammunition that the Nazis had, some of Poland might have stayed free and more persons would have survived the Holocaust.

The AR-15 is a defensive weapon, such as when it was used by a 15-year-old, who grabbed his father's and used it to ward off home invaders:

Not only did this brave 15-year-old defend his home against 2 burglars, but also his 12-year-old sister who was in the house with him. He grabbed his father's AR-15 and shot one of the burglars multiple times. They got away but had to go right to the hospital where the minor was arrested and the adult who was shot was flown to a different hospital.

In the hands of British redcoats, the musket was an assault weapon. In the hands of a law-abiding American, even those between 18 and 20, an AR-15 is what the Second Amendment is all about.

Seattle Police Begin NAZI STYLE Gun Confiscation: No Laws Broken, No Warrant, No Charges

March 6th, 2018 SHTFplan.com

A man in Seattle has had his gun confiscated by police after breaking no laws. The police took his gun without a warrant and without pressing any charges. Tyranny has officially taken hold on American soil.

This sets a precedent that government can now forcefully take guns away from an individual without a crime being committed or an arrest being made and without a warrant. In the name of fear and political exploitation of anti-gun rhetoric, a citizen's Second Amendment rights have been ripped away from him by the government.

The new "red flag" law, which has taken hold in other states already, allows the courts and law enforcement to take away guns from individuals they deem are dangerous and they've just begun the confiscation. A man living in the Belltown neighborhood of Seattle, Washington became the first individual in the state to have his firearm confiscated without any formal arrest or charges. The man was not identified by authorities.

Neighbors complained that the man had been "staring" at people through storefront windows while wearing a holstered firearm. He was not brandishing his weapon by any account, and open carrying is legal in the area, so he was abiding by the law. Other residents also complained that the man's open carrying made them feel "uncomfortable" and "unsafe."

Hey brother...I don't live in Seattle, but I've worked in and around the greater Seattle area for 3 years and can offer some insight on some current event topics like the Nazi style confiscation.

The fact of the matter is that we have had 3 years in a row terrible gun laws in our state. First they passed a law forbidding the transfer of guns from private parties in any capacity without a 3 day background check. Meaning they could lock you up for letting someone even hold your gun for a moment, much less shoot it at a gun range. They say the law was meant to prohibit "Craigslist gun sales," but the as always the devil is in the details, or lack thereof. Which brings me to the bump stock law that just passed. I'll be honest, I can't understand the 32 pages, it seems very specific to a stock that attaches to a rifle with the intent of moving for the sake utilizing recoil. But then again I don't know much there. I think the bigger play is to set precedent to stack the deck so that the oligarchy can command the ATF to make the disarmament provisions as you pointed out. What I do know however is that the law used in this state to go around due process and grab guns is in place. If one person reports to the police that someone is a danger to themselves and others then they are at the discretion of a judge to issue a warrant for the confiscation and detainment of a law abiding citizen. The provision is that the citizen is allowed a court date to appeal to their sanity. There are no public cases to my knowledge of this occurring yet. However the man in the article you were pointing out did in fact have a court date to appeal before the confiscation and failed to show up. The man apparently was a raging drunk and had multiple calls to the police about his behavior. Something seems very strange about this considering the demographic that lives on the street that was given in the article. Everyone there is a yuppie who wouldn't dream of buying a gun. Either the guy is a martyr for gun confiscation or he is a drunk and a bad neighbor that had guns that still legally did nothing wrong.

Seattle is a terrible place, and I carry a .45 any time deliver there now. Two times I delivered to a place that was shot up the next week and even minutes later.

To give you scope of the place, the homeless run rampant in this place I call Sodom, they actually provide little homes to them (built with tax payer dollars). legalization of marijuana has gotten so out of control there that I smell fresh weed smoke around every corner and see people with so much smoke in their car that they can barely see out of their car like in Chech and Chong.

The people are trendy zombies straight out of the hunger games. All the stuff about gender confusion you hear about in videos is reality there. Not to mention the mayor of Seattle is an exposed pedophile. Muslims are pouring in and present everywhere being a nuisance with their shahada, especially in the airport-SeaTac area where they started vast enclaves of communities where they are all living off the state and giving money back to liberal unions. And the house also just passed a bill through that is going to our communist governor that commands that all businesses are forced to insure their employees with abortifact drugs, contraception, and abortions. Just like the cities in like manner in Oregon.

Long story short brother, Seattle will be Judged as harshly as LA, NY, Miami, and all the rest of the Gomorrah's of this country.

Hope the message receives you well and will be a blessing helping you with your information-rich broadcasts.

Slippery Slope? DoJ Takes First Step To Ban Bump Stocks

The Trump administration on Saturday began the process to ban bump stocks through regulatory action.

“The Department of Justice has submitted to the Office of Management and Budget a notice of a proposed regulation to clarify that the National Firearms and Gun Control Act defines ‘machinegun’ to include bump stock type devices,” Attorney General Jeff Sessions said in a statement.

The Department of Justice (DOJ) submitted a notice of a regulation regarding the definition of “machinegun” in the National Firearms Act and Gun Control Act and proposing to include “bump stock type devices, and that federal law accordingly prohibits the possession, sale, or manufacture of such devices.”

Gun Confiscation Beta Tests Are Spreading Across the Country

Wednesday, March 7, 2018 14:18

This was a familiar sight in Boston and surrounding areas following the Boston Marathon Bombing.

<<Boston's brush with Martial Law

In the Spring of 2017, I received the following communication from someone claiming to be with DHS and they stated that they were rehearsing gun confiscation in urban areas. I had nothing to connect this communication to so I simply hung on to the message until I could connect this to something tangible. In the last 48 hours, there have been two events which tells me the Deep State is firmly in control and they are now rehearsing the seizing of American held guns. Here was the original warning:

Mr. Hodges

I have read much of what you have written about gun confiscation and so-called FEMA camps. They are real and generally, the information you provide is accurate. To the best of my knowledge you have not covered the mechanics of a gun seizure operation.

I am not totally on board with what I have been training to do with regard to Americans and their Second Amendment gun rights. I am eligible to retire in three years and my protests will accomplish nothing and I would lose my retirement. So you could say that I go along to get along.

What I am writing to you about is the government sponsored gun confiscation that is coming to this country. There are people in our government who determined to take your guns.

We have trained in mock cities on how we will accomplish this feat. We use a traditional checkerboard pattern similar to what the citizens of Boston experienced after the Boston Marathon bombing.

We have routinely practiced the same scenario, repeatedly. To cover a suburban block, our forces approach with two armored personnel carriers on opposite ends of the street, two per side of the street. One vehicle remains on each side of the street as the accompanying vehicle moves down the block. Our teams approach a house from the front but we also flank the house and enter the backyard. Our support vehicle trains its guns on the house. The assault teams consist of a dozen men each. The armored support vehicle has orders to immediately fire upon anyone appearing in a window with anything that could be construed as a gun. Our personnel, will knock one time on the front door. When the door is answered, we secure the individual or individuals and ask them how many people are in the house and where they are. We also ask how many guns are in the house, what type of guns they own and where they are stored and would anyone have guns on their person. Most often we have trained to assault a house between the hours of 3 and 4 in the morning. Then we clear the house with an emphasis on first entering the bedrooms. We accomplish this task in two man teams. We order any occupants to get on the floor and we secure them and then begin the search for guns. We employ a portable metal detector and gun sniffing dogs if available.

If the occupants are non-responsive, we enter after knocking down the front door. Before going in, we have already viewed the schematics of the target house. Yes, we have the blueprints for virtually every house in America. We go in hot and are trained to use deadly force against any any all perceived resistance. We don't use tear gas, we are trained to shoot any resisters.

Upon entering the house we are trained to identify ourselves and order everyone out of the house under gunpoint. We have trained on mock houses in which guns were hidden in the attic, under the bed, in a safe and even in underwear drawers. If the seized guns are legally registered, we seize the guns and let the family return. If the guns are illegal or not registered, we take the entire family into custody. We have practiced transporting families to differential holding facilities re children, men and women are held in different facilities. Each armored vehicle and their personnel make their way down the street from opposite ends. The accompanying vehicle stands guard at the end of each block to prevent escape. We prefer to execute the operation in bad weather because it eliminates escape possibilities.

One of the reasons that I am writing to you is because you have identified Camp Grayling as a detention facility during the Jade Helm drills. During that time my team trained foreign solders at the camp in the art of securing new prisoners. My training of foreign nationals makes me suspect that future gun confiscation efforts will be conducted under the auspices of the United Nations although I have not been told that. This is where I part company with my employer. I will not participate in such an operation.

When you write future articles on potential gun confiscation activities, I am hopeful that you will refer to some of the logistics to evaluate the authenticity of the information that you are given.....

<< This FEMA camp facility in Grayling, MI. was the sight of martial law training for the Michigan National guard commencing on July 15, which was the inception date for Jade Helm. This facility also houses hundreds of UN military vehicles. During Jade Helm, DHS, National Guard and foreign troops participated in the art of incarcerating the general public.

Spotted on American soil--The United Nations is positioning for the takeover of the United States.

Paul Martin contacted me on the evening of March 5, 2018 and told me he had reliable reports of two different groups of law enforcement going block to block in what appeared to be a gun confiscation beta test in Redlands, CA.

I recently interviewed Paul Martin regarding door-to-door visits by law enforcement as well as Jerry Brown's Moon-Beam Militia and they are asking residents if they have registered guns. Paul Preston, from Agenda 21 Radio is aware of this as well.

++ US Government is Trying To Use Psychiatric Drugs & The Violence They Produce to Confiscate Firearms From All Law Abiding Citizens
Sunday, March 11, 2018 By Paul Martin By Dave Hodges
TheCommonSenseShow.com

The correlation between psychiatric drugs and random acts of violence and homicide is well documented as the Food and Drug Administration requires black box warnings on the inserts of psychotropic drugs with regard to their relationship to violent behavior. Also, America has seen hundreds of cases where high profile acts of mass murder which were committed by individuals under the influence of psychiatric drugs.

Former president Obama would have you believe that we need to ban guns when in fact we would be a lot safer if we banned psychotropic medication instead.

Pennsylvania and Hawaii Begin Gun Confiscation of Medical Marijuana Users

Pennsylvania and Hawaii are making moves to confiscate the guns of medical marijuana users. A Pennsylvania State Police statement on their website, citing federal law, tells medical marijuana cardholders, "It is unlawful for you to keep possession of any firearms which you owned or had in your possession prior to obtaining a medical marijuana card, and you should consult an attorney about the best way to dispose of your firearms."

The Medical Applications and Benefits of CBD Oil and Cannabis

The Endocannabinoid System

Cannabis has been used for thousands of years, both recreationally and medically. People all over the world know the effects of cannabis, yet until 20 years ago, no one knew how it worked within our bodies. In the early 1990s, research scientists identified a system they named "the endocannabinoid system". This system is located in our brains and bodies. The system is made up of cell receptors and of the chemicals that bind to these receptors. This system has been identified in the some of the most primitive creatures on earth. It has been found to be the most widespread receptor system in the human body, explaining why cannabis has so many different effects. The endocannabinoid system appears to regulate many important physiologic pathways in the human body, including gastrointestinal activity, cardiovascular activity, pain perception, maintenance of bone mass, protection of neurons, hormonal regulation, metabolism control, immune function, inflammatory reactions, and inhibition of tumors cells.

The cannabinoid receptor system has two kinds of receptors:

- CB1 receptors – found mostly in the brain, spinal cord and other parts of the body including the heart, uterus, testis, liver, small intestine and peripheral cells
- CB2 receptors – found mostly on cells of the immune system, including the spleen, T-cells, B-cells and macrophages

A group of compounds, called cannabinoids, bind to the receptors. Cannabinoids come from three different places:

- Endocannabinoids – these are produced by the body on demand, usually in response to injury; five different endocannabinoids have been identified, including anandamide and 2-AG
- Synthetic cannabinoids – these are produced by scientists in a laboratory and include dronabinol (Marinol) and nabilone (Cesamet)
- Phytocannabinoids – these are produced by the cannabis plant; there are over 85 cannabinoids in the cannabis plant, including THC and cannabidiol as the main two

The cannabinoids interact with the receptors, much like a lock and key. The receptor is the lock and the cannabinoid molecule is the key. When the cannabinoid "key" attaches to the receptor "lock" (located in the cell wall), a reaction is triggered resulting in an effect on the brain and body. For instance, the area of the brain that controls memories is called the amygdala. When cannabinoids bind to the receptors on the cells of the amygdala, memory is affected. For those that suffer from past traumatic events who relive horrible memories (such as those with Post Traumatic Stress Disorder), the triggering of the cannabinoid receptor appears to change the brain function and memories are minimized.

A study using weakly radioactive THC-like synthetic drugs investigated where the human cannabinoid receptors were located. When people were given this radioactive drug and their brains were scanned, CB1 receptors were found all over the brain.

From heart disease to liver disease to elevated cancer risks, excessive alcohol consumption can indeed be devastating to a person's overall health. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, there are roughly 88,000 deaths attributable to alcohol use each year in the United States. In 2006, the CDC reported that there were 1.2 million emergency room visits and 2.7 million physician office visits due to excessive alcohol use.

Similarly, there's a laundry list of well-documented adverse health effects related to tobacco use, which harms nearly every organ in the body and causes the deaths of almost 480,000 people in the U.S. annually. Still, in what is likely thousands of years of human consumption, there have been no documented deaths as a result of marijuana overdose. According to a 1988 ruling from the DEA, a marijuana user would have to consume 20,000 to 40,000 times the amount of THC in a joint to be at risk of a fatal dose.

On the other hand, the CDC does not even have a category for deaths caused by the health effects of marijuana. A study published in Scientific Reports in January 2015 found that the mortality risk associated with marijuana was approximately 11,400% less than that of alcohol.

Of course, marijuana is not harmless either. Excessive use can lead to respiratory discomfort, although the drug itself has not been linked to lung damage. Studies have also shown cannabis can be addictive, however much less addictive than alcohol and even less than caffeine. That's not to say that marijuana can't be habit-forming: Between 4 and 9 percent of regular pot users can develop dependence on the drug, according to a frequently cited survey supported by the National Institute on Drug Abuse. That's compared with about 15 percent of drinkers who develop a dependence for alcohol.

Subject: RE: Side note

I use to make RSO for cancer patients in Oregon... testing at 90 is good... but the fact us once u get above 75 range it really doesn't effect u in a stronger way there is only so much your body can absorb... I know all about the oil I no longer make it but the bottom line is a couple things.. number one never online... too expensive and can't get it for cheap and low quality and also it's not RSO... even though they call it that.. if it was true RSO.. with thc... depending on the state it would be a crime to order it online even if a small percent of thc...all these laws are to keep us sick in the end... so making it is easy there is an exact protocol... the difference between online and like if you were able to go to a dispensary is obviously the thc content... there is a place out here that specifically focuses in on cancer patients and rso... they charge 30 or so a gram and u need a gram of the stuff u just eat it... at first it will mess you up and give u needed sleep but u want to cure that condition it is worth it... and it will help ur muscles and back big time I don't mean just a little it will blow your mind the relief you get... Yes but ordering it online is no good.. You need the real RSO.. tested and testing high in cbd.... that stuff works I have seen it work for years in other people... for example in Denver I could go to a dispensary and get tested good quality cbd... the problem is cbd.. is activated by thc... so there must be a ratio... I've ordered it online before and it's overpriced and not good quality.... there are certain strains people use for that particular issue... You need to be up to a gram of cbd a day from an oral syringe it should be black and real sticky stuff usually they mix it with olive oil to change the consistency and make it pliable but I don't think online is good.

You need the real rso or it won't work at all... the sites online call it rso... but to be real rso and work it involves the whole plant and not just an element of the plant like cbd alone treats pain but it will not work to treat let's say cancer cells or glaucoma, Parkinson's and severe chronic pain, ect... this all is like doing a cleanse once a tolerance us built it becomes easier and easier to take the med... Your circulation feels wonderful and all around it works of say... seen too many people treat major illness with it... it can be kinda hard on the stomach little acid not much...

...So the evil spirit thing (connected to the cannibus) could be questionable and even sensational to some degree as I've met so many Dr's and even Christians who have major illness and are using it every day for their medication and they seem to look great and feel great... I think that's why some could have a substantial desire for it and yes this could get out of control just like how people can't stop eating food that they know is bad for them... physically I can tell u I had zero withdrawals at the end of the treatment.. also the industry is surrounded by new age for lack of a better word trash.... and it is true that people make it into a spiritual thing and use it for meditation and the like... so praying over it is good but I have never had a problem with that because in Oregon the Christians I knew grew it and played good Christian music and did bible studies in the grow room with all those good lights... so the plant was strong and a very healthy plant.. if u sit there and curse the plant and sware at it and abuse the grow process the plant defiantly responds in kind. But the growers in CO are the best in the world... ...there is a big difference between sativa and Indica...

I had a hard time with cannibus I was faced with a tumor on my Kidney.. then I tried it....learning over the years... I am so thankful for it and can't even tell you in how many ways it gave me such good health I was blown away The reason I know so much, is because of my tumor and after it went away I needed to help others in whatever way I could... I'm like you don't have to die from cancer... and I mean there killing us it would seem..... slow long drawn out battles with health and the med system loves it that way for profit death care... it is a real shame more people can't get access...

...Exactly the cannabinoid receptors are in the eyes and other places in the body.... this is what I meant about a secondary immune system waking up... honestly staying off drugs by big pharm is wonderful and this stuff helps... I think the legal states say opioid use in this state has dropped by like 30-40 percent... I'm glad u are getting the right info on the subject..

Legalizing Marijuana Decreases Fatal Opiate Overdoses, Study Shows

According to the American Academy of Pain Medicine, more than 100 million Americans suffer from chronic pain. In an effort to relieve that constant pain, the number of opiate prescriptions has nearly doubled over the last decade. Today, opiates like hydrocodone, oxycodone, and morphine flood the streets, driving up addiction rates and fatal opiate overdoses.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has officially labeled the problem an “opiate epidemic.” As experts scramble to come up with a plan that combats the nation’s dependence on opiates, a new study published last week in the journal JAMA Internal Medicine indicates medical marijuana might be the key. Over the past two decades, deaths from drug overdoses have become the leading cause of injury death in the United States. In 2011, 55 percent of drug overdose deaths were related to prescription medications; 75 percent of those deaths involved opiate painkillers. However, researchers found that opiate-related deaths decreased by approximately 33 percent in 13 states in the following six years after medical marijuana was legalized.

“The striking implication is that medical marijuana laws, when implemented, may represent a promising approach for stemming runaway rates of nonintentional opioid-analgesic-related deaths,” wrote opiate abuse researchers Dr. Mark S. Brown and Marie J. Hayes in a commentary published alongside the study. Researchers looked at medical marijuana laws and death certificate data in all 50 states between the years of 1999 and 2010. During that time, only 13 states had medical marijuana laws in place. Researchers quickly noticed that the rates of fatal opioid overdoses were significantly lower in states that had legalized medical marijuana. In 2010 alone, states with legalized medical marijuana saw approximately 1,700 fewer opiate-related overdose deaths.

“We found there was about a 25 percent lower rate of prescription painkiller overdose deaths on average after implementation of a medical marijuana law,” lead study author Dr. Marcus Bachhuber said.

About 60 percent of the nation’s fatal opioid overdoses occur among patients who have legitimate prescriptions for their medications. In states where medical marijuana is legal, however, a legitimate opiate user is able to significantly decrease his or her dosage, making overdose less likely.

Currently, 23 states and the District of Columbia have passed medical marijuana laws. Use of medicinal cannabis is approved for a number of conditions, including cancer, HIV, multiple sclerosis, and glaucoma. Despite the diagnosis, medical marijuana is primarily used to relieve chronic or severe pain. It’s that pain-relieving effect that decreases the number of fatal opioid overdoses.

What does the research say about CBD? In this blog post we describe a few (as there are many!) potential health benefits being uncovered.

Hemp, which is legal in all 50 states, contains a relatively high concentration of CBD, and only trace amounts of THC. This allows for the CO2-extraction of CBD, and the formulation of CBD-containing blends used via oral ingestion.

CBD has been studied for a vast amount of potential health benefits, including:

- Neuralgic pain,
- Anti-cancer properties,
- Depression & anxiety,

- Antibiotic resistance
- And much, much more. Much of the research thus performed can be viewed at ProjectCBD.org/conditions.

I mean America is a communist country it is ridiculous that you can't just make it in your own place.. I was fortunate to do this for about 6 months and 4 of them I hit it hard every day and got rid of a tumor... also if you just want cbd to start to treat other pains and stuff, it can work great but again it must be legit... but in many instances no THC means no real healing, as thc works with cbd... cbd slows the cancer cells energy production in the mitochondria and then the thc... moves in and destroys the cell so in this case it has to be together to get the desired results, but I've been to every state that's legal and CO has the best in the world... worldwide it's by far the best place to get good quality Yes sir no thc isn't good... for treatment purposes cbd and thc and all the other elements of the plant has to be together to work right, especially for cancer and if you look at the Phoenix Tears the book u can see the ratio of thc and cbd has to be what he says or it won't be even close to being effective to treat serious illness... and see the fine details lol u have to try and treat it with the right strain of rso....

Also expose Jeff Sessions and his views on the issue and how it is an excuse to terrorize business owners period

Wow! All these drug documentaries I have seen have documented how pot has been the main target of the US government, not meth heroin, cocaine or Oxy. The U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration lists marijuana in the most restrictive of five classes that the agency uses to regulate dangerous drugs. Marijuana is classified as a Schedule I substance, which is the ranking reserved for drugs with the greatest potential for abuse and with no medicinal value. Heroin, ecstasy and LSD are listed in that category, too, while cocaine and methamphetamine rank one level lower than marijuana, as Schedule II!!!! Marijuana has been classified as a Schedule I drug, the highest rank by the Drug Enforcement Administration, since the 1970s. Marijuana's listing among the most dangerous drugs has been heavily influenced over the years by politics and public opinion, while advocacy groups have been working to change it for decades. They argue that the Schedule I classification isn't justified on scientific grounds. Marijuana is not considered highly addictive or dangerous except possibly for adolescents who smoke it while their brains are still forming. And the plant holds amazing medical promise in a number of areas. But according to the drug documentaries I have seen the US government (especially Jeff Sessions) will actually prioritize marijuana arrests over heroin and meth!!!! What this has also done is creates a huge prison population in the USA and biggest in the world per capita by far and a huge number of them of the incarcerations have been over marijuana. All by design. The gov. does not want a legitimate remedy like cannabis to compete with all the opioid meds, coke, meth and heroin, etc. flooding the US. It is a Satanic agenda. Remember before we look at Sessions this according to the US Government this is perfectly fine and legal:

Jeff Sessions' War on Marijuana Is Just Beginning--Rescinding the Cole memo could be just the start

Sean Williams (TMFUltraLong) Jan 13, 2018 at 11:41AM

It's not hard to understand why marijuana has become such a hot commodity in the U.S., either. A number of recent surveys have all led to the same conclusion: The American public wants pot legalized. Nearly two-thirds of respondents in Gallup's October 2017 poll favored the idea of legalizing cannabis nationally, with 94% of respondents in an August 2017 survey from the independent Quinnipiac University favoring the legalization of medical cannabis. Presumably, as these support figures move higher, so will legal cannabis sales -- and the pressure put on lawmakers on Capitol Hill to change marijuana's scheduling.

As a reminder, schedule I substances are wholly illegal, considered to have a high potential for abuse, and have no recognized medical benefits. This places marijuana on the same footing as LSD and heroin.

Jeff Sessions declares war on the marijuana industry

It's no secret that Jeff Sessions is an ardent opponent of the marijuana movement. He gave a speech last year to his fellow attorney generals where, to summarize, he suggested that medical cannabis isn't a safe, or appropriate, replacement for opioids. But in 2017, Sessions was all bark and no bite. That changed in a big way earlier this month.

On Jan. 4, 2018, Sessions released a one-page memo announcing that the Department of Justice (DOJ) would be rescinding the Cole memo, which was named after former Deputy Attorney General James Cole, who served under President Obama. The Cole memo outlined a loose set of "rules" that with states legalizing marijuana, they had to follow in order to keep the federal government off their backs, so to speak.

Play: Senator Cory Booker \(D-NJ\) on Attorney General Jeff Sessions' marijuana policy change \(C-SPAN\)

Sen. Cory Gardner (R-CO) threatened to block all Justice Department nominees after Attorney General Jeff Sessions said he would end Obama-era policies that limited federal interference in state marijuana laws:

Play: GOP senator rips Sessions over rescinding the Cole memo marijuana policy

The move wasn't a complete surprise, considering that Sessions' right-hand man at the DOJ, Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein, had announced over the summer that the DOJ was reviewing the scope of the Cole memo and its validity. More importantly, the move by Sessions also opens the door for possible legal action against marijuana businesses operating in states that have legalized it in some capacity. Though the Rohrabacher-Farr Amendment (also known as the Rohrabacher-Blumenauer Amendment) disallows the DOJ from using federal dollars to prosecute medical marijuana businesses, rescinding the Cole memo effectively gives state-level prosecutors the right to bring charges against marijuana businesses, when deemed appropriate.

Sessions has put his foot down on medical cannabis research, too
Sessions also seems highly unlikely to expand medical marijuana research at the federal level in any capacity.

In August 2016, the Obama administration outlined a series of changes designed to allow researchers easier access to federally grown marijuana. The new system encouraged universities to apply for grow licenses with the federal government in an effort to establish a much-needed benefit-versus-risk profile for cannabis. But as Forbes recently reported, the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency requested that researchers grow 443,680 grams of cannabis in 2018, or just over 978 pounds. This actually represents a slight decline from what was grown for medical research in 2017, despite the Obama administration's pledge to open doors for medical cannabis research. Despite 25 proposals from universities to grow medical marijuana for the federal government, the DOJ passed on them, allowing the University of Mississippi to remain the only approved grow facility in the United States. This is unlikely to change with Sessions heading the DOJ.
