Sermon Overview: Many new agers, occultists & scientific experts from around the world are predicting that a little over 4 years from now, all life on Earth could well come to an end. Some are saying it will be humans that would set it off. Others believe that a natural phenomenon will be the cause. And some 'religious folks' are saying it'll be God himself who would press the stop button. The following are some current arguments as to why the world will end by the year 2012. #1) The Mayan calendar... The first to predict 2012 as the end of the world were the Mayans, a bloodthirsty race that were good at two things -- building highly accurate astrological equipment out of stone and human sacrifice. Thousands of years ago they managed to calculate the length of the lunar moon as 329.53020 days, only 34 seconds out. Some say the Mayan calendar predicts that the earth will end on December 21, 2012. #2&3) In recent years, NASA has confirmed the existence of a massive planet that is said to pass earth every 3600 years. It is postulated by many that this (Brown Dwarf) Planet (Planet-X/NIBIRU) will near pass earth DEC 22, 2012 and be the trigger for the Cataclysmic Events/Planetary Pole Shift that we read of in Revelation and Matt. 24. Lastly there is the occult legend that the ancient Maya possessed 13 crystal skulls which, when united (in 2012), have the power to save the Earth -- this heresy actually is what inspired the latest Indiana Jones movie: The Kingdom of the Crystal Skull. In this teaching we will attempt to look at all these subject from a Biblical perceptive.

Will The World Come To An End In 2012? Scientific experts from around the world are predicting that five years from now, all life on Earth could well come to an end. Some are saying it'll be humans that would set it off. Others believe that a natural phenomenon will be the cause. And the religious folks are saying it'll be God himself who would press the stop button. The following are some likely arguments as to why the world would end by the year 2012. Reason one: Mayan calendar... The first to predict 2012 as the end of the world were the Mayans, a bloodthirsty race that were good at two things -- building highly accurate astrological equipment out of stone and sacrificing virgins. Thousands of years ago they managed to calculate the length of the lunar moon as 329.53020 days, only 34 seconds out. The Mayan calendar predicts that the earth will end on December 21, 2012. Given that they were pretty close to the mark with the lunar cycle, it's likely they've got the end of the world right as well... Reason three: The atom smasher... Scientists in Europe have been building the world's largest particle accelerator. Basically, its a 27 km tunnel designed to smash atoms together to find out what makes the universe tick. However, the mega-gadget has caused serious concern, with some scientists suggesting that it's properly even a bad idea to turn it on in the first place. They're predicting all manner of deadly results, including mini black holes. So when this machine is fired up for its first serious experiment in 2012, the world could be crushed into a super-dense blob the size of a basketball....

COMET PLANET

In recent years, NASA confirms the existence of a massive, Comet Planet that is said to pass earth every 3600 years. It is possible this Comet Planet (NIBIRU) will near pass earth DEC 22, 2012 and be the trigger for the Cataclysmic Events that we read of in Revelation and Matt:24.

The close passing of Earth by a massive Comet Planet (almost as large as Jupiter) would place a powerful gravitational pull upon earth and could cause POLAR SHIFT. The earth could flip on its axis and cause 1000 ft high tidal waves, 300 m.p.h. winds and trigger every earthquake and volcano on earth to erupt.

It is possible that eons ago, this Comet-Planet near passed earth and caused POLAR SHIFT and The Great Flood of Noah's day. Again, this also sounds like the cataclysmic Judgment we read in Revelation (16) and Isaiah (24) that shall come upon the world that will follow Antichrist and murder for his father, Satan.

This also could heavily relate to the end of the Mayan Calendar in 2012 and the plumed serpent Quetzalcoatl's predicted return. The book below (which I have personally read and I know the author) is under the category of "Christian Fiction" but I gives a very interesting interpretation of Quetzalcoatl from an endtime standpoint and Biblical standpoint: <http://www.ahrimangate.com/>

Nephilim Stargates: The Year 2012 and the Return of the Watchers

"Dr. Horn has convinced me of a frightening, supernatural reality that I never anticipated. 'Nephilim Stargates' is excellently researched and thoroughly fascinating. I read it from cover to cover in one night... Those that do the same should probably switch on as many lights in their house as possible and not be alone at the time." David Flynn, author of Cydonia: The Secret Chronicles of Mars

USA Today Asks: Does Maya Calendar Predict 2012 Apocalypse?

With humanity coming up fast on 2012, publishers are helping readers gear up and count down to this mysterious — some even call it apocalyptic — date that ancient Mayan societies were anticipating thousands of years ago. Since November, at least three new books on 2012 have arrived in mainstream bookstores. A fourth is due this fall. Each arrives in the wake of the 2006 success of 2012: The Return of Quetzalcoatl, which has been selling thousands of copies a month since its release in May and counts more than 40,000 in print. The books also build on popular interest in the Maya, fueled in part by Mel Gibson's December 2006 film about Mayan civilization, Apocalypto. Authors disagree about what humankind should expect on Dec. 21, 2012, when the Maya's "Long Count" calendar marks the end of a 5,126-year era. Journalist Lawrence Joseph forecasts widespread catastrophe in Apocalypse 2012: A Scientific Investigation Into Civilization's End. Spiritual healer Andrew Smith predicts a restoration of a "true balance between Divine Feminine and Masculine" in The Revolution of 2012: Vol. 1, The Preparation. In 2012, Daniel Pinchbeck anticipates a "change in the nature of consciousness," assisted by indigenous insights and psychedelic drug use.

Mexico's Crystals Skulls, From Reel To Real Life

There is a legend that the ancient Maya possessed 13 crystal skulls which, when united, have the power to save the Earth -- a tale so strange and fantastic that it inspired the latest Indiana Jones movie. Experts dismiss the hundreds of crystal skulls around as fakes that were probably made by unscrupulous antiquities traders in the 19th century. But even today Mayan priests worship the skulls and real-life treasure hunters still search for them. The story of the skulls stretches over continents and hundreds of years, and may be even more extraordinary than the tale portrayed in the fourth installment of the Indiana Jones franchise.

Excerpt: Mayan 2012, Roswell, and the Return of the Watchers

It's interesting that trailers for the new Indiana Jones film contain overt references to Roswell 1947 and the search for the Mayan Crystal skull. Seems somebody in Steven Spielberg's camp has been reading the works of Tom Horn and David Flynn (wait till they get a load of David Flynn's top secret new book, due out later this year from Anomalos Publishing -- Temple at the Center of Time). Meanwhile, check out this excerpt from Tom Horn's new book that could have inspired the connection in the new Indiana Jones film

Skull 'Find' Inspires Indiana Jones

It has evoked awe among believers and drawn scorn from skeptics, but there's one irrefutable fact about a Canadian woman's controversial claim to have discovered a crystal skull during a 1924 archeological dig in Central America: It was the prime inspiration for the latest, long-awaited Indiana Jones movie, which opens Thursday in theatres across North America. The late Anna Mitchell-Hedges -- a Port Colborne, Ont., orphan who was adopted by British adventurer Frederick Mitchell-Hedges in the early 1900s and died just last year at age 100 -- spent her long life retelling the tale of her chance sighting of a glinting object amid Mayan ruins in Belize.
