China backs talks on how to replace dollar as reserve currency—
MOSCOW, March 19 (Reuters) - China and other emerging nations back Russia's call for a discussion on how to replace the dollar as the world's primary reserve currency, a senior Russian government source said on Thursday. Russia has proposed the creation of a new reserve currency, to be issued by international financial institutions, among other measures in the text of its proposals to the April G20 summit published last Monday.

Calls for a rethink of the dollar's status as world's sole benchmark currency come amid concerns about its long-term value as the U.S. Federal Reserve moved to pump more than a trillion dollars of new cash into the ailing economy late Wednesday.

U.N. panel says world should ditch dollar By Jeremy Gaunt
Gaunt, European Investment Correspondent--LUXEMBOURG (Reuters) - A U.N. panel will next week recommend that the world ditch the dollar as its reserve currency in favor of a shared basket of currencies, a member of the panel said on Wednesday, adding to pressure on the dollar.

Currency specialist Avinash Persaud, a member of the panel of experts, told a Reuters Funds Summit in Luxembourg that the proposal was to create something like the old Ecu, or European currency unit, that was a hard-traded, weighted basket.
Persaud, chairman of consultants Intelligence Capital and a former currency chief at JPMorgan, said the recommendation would be one of a number delivered to the United Nations on March 25 by the U.N. Commission of Experts on International Financial Reform.

New World Order Monetary System
<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=oheM9H5RYWA&feature=related>

When both the United States and the United Nations call for abandonment of the Dollar, you must know that the Amero cannot be far behind.

NEWS BRIEF: "U.S. backs global alternative to Dollar", World Net Daily, March 19, 2009

"Increasingly, the International Monetary Fund, with the support of the United States and Russia, appears positioned to launch a one-world currency at the upcoming G-20 meeting in London ... The idea is for the IMF to issue at least $250 billion in Special Drawing Rights, or SDRs, to IMF member states as a method of placing a safety net under developing countries that might otherwise have to declare bankruptcy. The idea gained momentum Tuesday when the Moscow Times published an article revealing that the Kremlin intended to use the G-20 meeting, beginning April 2, to push for the IMF to utilize SDRs as 'a super-reserve currency widely accepted by the whole of the international community'."

Special Drawing Rights, or SDRs, are nothing new, as they were originally created in 1907 by the IMF and have been called "paper gold". SDRs are "designed to supplement the reserves of gold and convertible currencies (or hard currencies) used to maintain stability in the foreign exchange market. For example, if the U.S. Treasury sees that the British pound's value has fallen precipitously in relation to the dollar, it can use its store of SDRs to buy excess pounds on the foreign exchange market, thereby raising the value of the remaining supply of pounds." (Ibid.)

Does the expansion of this super-reserve currency signal a global currency? Perhaps, and perhaps not - at least not right away.

Since the Illuminati Plan foresees the creation of a Regional system which would precede the global, we expect that the final agenda of this economic crisis is to replace the American Dollar with the North American Union currency which is now being called the AMERO. Since World War II, regional political and military unions have been set up, i.e., NATO, SEATO, ASEAN, just to name a few.

While SDR may be set in place to prevent a collapse of the Dollar, the ultimate goal right now will be the regional solution, the creation of the AMERO currency. The actual global currency which Antichrist and his False Prophet will inherit will be created only after World War III; the economies of the developed world will be set back up on their feet, but they will be based solely on the new global currency.

The United Nations even got in on the act of calling for the Dollar to be abandoned, and their call was tied into the Special Drawing Rights program - a shared basket of currencies -- which we already covered.

When the Illuminati bank, J.P. Morgan, supports the Shared Basket of Currencies, or SDR's, then you must realize that the proposal carries a heavyweight international backing. We could very well see this SDR as the real solution for the world's economic problems. Rest assured that this new global currency will steadily evolve into the global currency foretold in Revelation 13:16-18.

Subject: [BPSF] URGNT Financial news: Fed has Destroyed US Dollar

Only Glenn Beck is reporting this in the "mainstream media". Yesterday, the Federal Reserve "bought"/printed one trillion dollars' of our debt (moving money from one pocket to another). This will cause the US Dollar to become worthless and we're about ready to go into hyper-inflation ... you'll need a wheel-barrow-load of cash just to buy a loaf of bread. This is what happened to the Weimar Republic in Germany after WWI, and more recently, to Zimbabwe.

TODAY, I got the following email from my account rep at Lear Capital. Please move on this ASAP to protect your assets and/or retirement. (Phyllis and I have already moved our IRAs into gold and silver.) Lear has the lowest discount rates of any company we've found.

Two days ago I wrote you to alert you of the evidence that the Federal Reserve -- the largest bank in the world -- was broke. Yesterday, we received bright, in-the-daylight proof that it is.

I have studied currencies for 27 years and know what to look for when a bank begins to "monetize" its debt. This is what happened yesterday afternoon. It caused gold to increase in value $55 per ounce in one hour & 45 minutes. That's 5.81%, or 3.32% per hour!! It's also why gold is continuing to go higher today! In a nutshell, our central bank is out in the open selling Treasuries out the front door & buying them back through the back door. This action is:

- 1). Unconstitutional
- 2). Insane
- 3). Will cause our foreign debt holders to be more nervous than they already are

This was put into words by analyst Matt Theal late yesterday, when he said this:

"Have you ever shot lighter fluid on a barbecue that was already lit? The result: Fireball, at least until the lighter fluid burns out. This is pretty much what the Fed did today."

He also said this:

"Mark my words: Cornered animals have little to lose, and they will take on our dare. Currencies worldwide have just been tossed on a path to worthlessness."

Here's the link to the article: <http://www.minyanville.com/articles/gold-dollar-GLD-spx-AEM-oil/index/a/21716>

Here's what the folks at MarketWatch had to say about it: <http://www.marketwatch.com/news/story/Fed-buy-Treasurys-latest-bid/story.aspx?guid=%7b8C08C8DB-1945-4A8A-A047-C3782DE43911%7d&print=true&dist=printMidSection>

Here's what you should do - action to take:

To protect your savings from the probable coming hyperinflation, buy gold & silver now with both hands!! Please email me back if you have any questions & thanks for your time.

I don't think ANY of this will be reported in the left-wing media.

I've been URGING you to get prepared by getting our non-hybrid seeds and learning how to can foods. About 60 of you (out of 5013) have done so. PLEASE don't put this off! The day may soon be here when our shiny new Marxist government won't let us do business. Click on the 'seeds' and 'how to' links (above) to take care of business, while we know you still can. (Our future is very uncertain under this administration....)

Until next time, stay safe!

Solid Preparations for an Uncertain Future

<http://www.basictraining.org/index.php?proc=sn&nid=310>

Review: Level One preparation

In my previous posting we looked at the most fundamental essentials of spiritual preparation. These are things contained in the soul, in the event we stand "bare-handed" in coming days.

1. A storehouse of memorized scripture (Ps.119:11).
2. A strong, resilient faith (1 Pe.4:12).
3. A genuine, daily communion with Jesus Christ (JOH 14:21-23).

Level Two: Basic Necessities

Recently I have been reading a book by David Roberts called "Four Against the Arctic", the story of four Russian sailors who in 1743 were stranded for six years on a barren Arctic island. When they left their ice-bound ship to look for shelter they had only the barest provisions. Between the ship and shore was two miles of shifting ice floes and thinly frozen sea ice. To minimize weight they carried only "the clothes on their backs...a musket with twelve balls and twelve charges of black powder, a single knife, a single axe, a small kettle, twenty pounds of flour in a bag, a tinderbox and a little tinder, a pouch of tobacco, and one wooden pipe each." (pg.4).

On returning the next day, they were horrified to find that during their absence, the sea ice had broken up and their ship and mates had gone down into the depths of the sea. And they were stranded in a remote corner of the Arctic, with no real hope of being found. After bagging twelve caribou their powder and shot were exhausted. They had enough meat and furs to last through the winter, but what then? Scouring the shore for driftwood, they discovered a few boards from a shipwreck, in which were a bolt and two six inch nails. These proved to be their key to survival.

Using the bolt as a hammer, they flattened the nails into broad blades which they attached to heavy shafts. With these they successfully attacked and killed a polar bear, providing both meat, and the right kind of sinew to make strong string, with which they strung a bow they had carved from the root of a fir tree found among the driftwood. With this crude bow and arrows tipped with a few smaller nails flattened into arrow heads, they survived for six years and three months, when they were sighted and rescued by another ship blown off-course in an Arctic storm. Such is the possibility of determined minds, skilled hands, and a refusal to give in to hopeless despair.

What about us? What do we really need? Suppose that you are given the luxury of at least having the bare necessities to face perilous times, what would you include in your list? I have pondered this at length, for years. My conception of “necessities” has been refined as I have visited and lived among people who truly know by experience the meaning of the word. As the old Aboriginal saying goes, “The more you know, the less you need”. Having studied survival craft for decades my thoughts immediately go to the basic list, the order of which changes depending on the conditions faced. But the essentials, which I pare down to needs rather than equipment, are: shelter, food, water, fire, tools (knife, light, etc.), navigation (solar, stellar, map/compass), signal (mirror). Each of these needs is met in various ways, depending on the individual. Yet as I reflect on these time-tested ideas, I am convinced these things are not first on the list. Here are my suggestions.

1. Community. In the story of the four sailors this is the big factor which contributed to the survival of each of them. Each member brought skills and abilities to the community pool. Each relied on the others to lift and encourage them. The four survived where one alone would have died. Our community begins with our family, and includes a body of believers, each with differing talents and gifts. Without such a team every adversity is more difficult to endure.

2. Ministry. Commercialism always looks at “profit” as the ultimate goal. Every act and move is calculated in light of “what do I get out of it?” This is why as a nation we are in the mess we are in. God’s kingdom works in diametric opposition to the “world system”. Living in the community of God’s people, our first concern is “others”, and how we can serve them. Instead of being “consumers” we think in terms of being “contributors” to the well-being of others. Every believer has spiritual gifts as well as talents and abilities, which God has given for “the profit (well-being) of all” (1Cor.12:7). When our life is built around service we learn to forget self, and leave our needs to God, who is faithful to fulfill His promises and meet all our needs. If this attitude had prevailed in the great depression, farmers would have given milk and meat to starving, out-of-work families, rather than dumping milk and letting slaughtered cattle rot, simply because they could not “profit” from their produce.

3. Skills/ tools.

“Training is everything. The peach was once a bitter almond; cauliflower is nothing but cabbage with a college education.” - Mark Twain.

While Nan and I were in the desert of Western Zambia last September we saw a living lesson for life. One crippled old man, very poor, survived only by the handouts people would give him. Since we came to this remote area in a four-wheel drive, instead of walking the eighteen hours across the bushland as Logan and I had done a year before, we were able to bring in a huge load of used clothes which the church in Livingstone had collected for these poor people. Opportunity was given for each of the poor to pick through the clothes and choose something they could use. This old man had gotten a shirt, and an old, worn-out pair of running shoes. The soles were separated from the uppers. As he sat in the compound, in front of our hut, I saw him working with a piece of wire about a foot long. First he broke it in half. Then he sharpened one end on one piece, bending the other end into a handle, he had an awl. With the other piece he did the same, except that he bent the sharp point into a very fine hook. He then took a very fine piece of plant fiber, used the awl to punch holes in the soles, then the small hook to pull the fiber through, and stitched the soles to the uppers. When he finished, I looked at the shoes, which looked as if they had been repaired in a shoe shop. I wondered if he ever thought of bartering his shoe-repair skills to others in the village for food, or clothing? The tools of the four men lost in the arctic were minimal, but their ingenuity magnified the usefulness of what little they had. Years ago as a young Bible college student in Phoenix, I remember one speaker at chapel service who gave us the formula of America's success. He said "Prosperity is the result of willingness to work, plus ability (training), multiplied by tools." He emphasized that one major difference between capitalism and communism is that in America, the worker owns his tools, therefore takes care of them. Even the simplest tool, skillfully used, can multiply our productivity. Remember the little poem?

*"Shamgar had an ox-goad
David had a sling
Dorcas had a needle
Rahab had some string
Mary had some ointment
Moses had a rod
What small thing do you have
That you'll dedicate to God?"*

Hardship and adversity are great teachers. If we are teachable, we will learn many skills in coming days that we never considered before. I remember teaching, many years ago in my first church, that the days would come when we would need to learn skills from the homeless street-people. Those days may be upon us. Learn to be self-reliant. Be observant and available to develop simple skills with which you can be a servant to others. Be willing to work, to help those in need (EPH 4:28). Don't calculate what you will get out of it. As you help others, they may learn to help you, and God will certainly see to your reward.

"Give, and it will be given to you: good measure, pressed down, shaken together, and running over will be put into your bosom. For with the same measure that you use, it will be measured back to you." (LUK 6:38)

4. Teamwork. As a small boy I remember my Father telling me a story I have never forgotten. This happened in the early days of America, when George Washington was a young man. He came upon a few men, trying to load some heavy freight into a wagon. The road was muddy from recent rains, the men were struggling and slipping in the deep mud, while a crowd of onlookers stood by, not wanting to get into the mud and help. Washington, a successful and prosperous land owner, got down from his horse and helped to lift the load into the wagon. Then my Father said, "Never stand by and watch someone struggling at any job. Don't ever be afraid to get dirty helping someone. What is an impossible task for one or two will be easily done by three!" I have never forgotten the story, and have often seen it proved true. We will all need to learn to work together, so that the burdens of these times are lessened for each of us. Remember the cord of three strands (ECC 4:12)! If each one of us works to lighten the burdens of others, we will find our own will be lightened in return.

"The Lord grant mercy to the household of Onesiphorus, for he often refreshed me, and was not ashamed of my chain; but when he arrived in Rome, he sought me out very zealously and found me. The Lord grant to him that he may find mercy from the Lord in that Day- and you know very well how many ways he ministered to me at Ephesus." 2TI 1:16-18

May we so serve one another,

Gene Cunningham
